

VOL. XXVI...NO. 50.

Packages of Bank Notes endorsed Counterfeit
No. 1, package marked "New Orleans,"	$4
No. 2, small notes,	3
No. 3, Various Banks,	3
No. 4, Do	1
No. 5, Do	3
No. 6, In a dead letter,	1
No. 13, Ditto dubious,	5
No. 14, Counterfeits,	3
No. 15, Do	3
No. 16, Do	3

No. 18,	Do
No. 19,	Do
No. 20,	Do
No. 21,	Do
No. 22,	Do
No. 23,	Do
No. 24, 1 counterfeit $10 note and one fifteen shilling bill, Pa.
No. 25, counterfeit (found in desk)		$2.00

The undersigned have the honor to state, that foregoing is a statement of all that appears to be of value, contained in the Iron Chest remaining in the room lately occupied by Abraham Bradley, late Assistant Postmaster General, and would may be some serious bills, and respectfully suggest the propriety of submitting them for the examination of some competent judges; and that with a view to their early identification in future, the initials (N. B.) have been marked in red ink on each note.

Very respectfully submitted by your obedient servant,
JOHN SUTHERLAND
(Signed) M. T. SIMPSON

Hon. WM. T. BARRY, Postmaster General.

We add the following statement prepared by Mr. Simpson, at the request of the Postmaster General, of the substance of what transpired between himself and Mr. Abraham Bradley:

"His friend Mr. Simpson's intention to visit the he sent for Mr. S. and with the kindest expression good feeling for Mr. Bradley, said "the appreciate S's motives for wishing to effect a peaceful undisturbed." That Mr. Bradley had sent him a key of the chest, on the evening of the day of his removal, to Mr. S., who mentioned in respectful terms that his father in a few days, would send the others; and that, in the event of a removal, the removal of dismial, had been prevented from stating that he had been assigned his pay should be continued to the last day of which note had, by mistake of the messenger, carried from his house to the office, with the letters, when it had been his design first to see of the noon in the evening, and to inform him of intention so to extend his pay: And then requested to mention to Mr. Bradley that his pay should be so extended to the evening of the city as he had intended that he would be in the city at that time. At 12 o'clock, M. on Monday next, he should have assigned him, and the aid of such clerks as he required to enable him to close his cash accounts, and to make up his accounts. He was very glad they were agreeable to him—close his letters on that press framed—his pay continued to the middle of next month from the time of his removal, and, as he was to be in the city, he should be able to receive a reasonable compensation for his services and labor. Mr. Simpson proceeded on the Saturday of the week, to the residence of Mr. Bradley, who remained in the city until the next morning. After some time had been consumed in conversation, he was called to the great hall, on the close of a long term of duty. Mr. S. said "Mr. Bradley, I have a message to deliver to you, and to the members of the court."

above mentioned, adding distinctly, that the Postmaster-General requested him to say "whether you returned your accounts, as proposed, on the 1st of the month of your part, shall be the 1st of the month of the year (1st October)." He soon after resumed his speech, and it was in view to request permission of the Postmaster-General to allow him the liberty of attending at the office for the purpose of settling his accounts. Having referred from his conversation that he would accept the proposal, Mr. S., when about to leave his house, was interrupted by the Postmaster-General, who said in reply, that you will be the only person who will be interrupted him rather suddenly and said, "I will place say to the Postmaster-General that I thank you for his kind offer, and that I will be in the city on Monday, and will call at the office," ("call upon him

From his whole manner, as well as words, I doubted not that Mr. Bradley's design was to accept of the postmaster General in good will and offer the so felt great pleasure in informing the late of his return to the city in the evening.

In the course of Mr. S's stay and conversations with Bradley, he remarked, but in the most temperate manner, I was disposed to believe, I could have said that the master General removed by his own consent to the continent, and representing some of his acts in a different light, and towards Mr. S. he at the same moment said, "but I don't wish it mentioned, nor do I desire to create difficulties." He then mentioned what he could say in carrying the mail in S. Carolina, for the purpose of expediting the mail—stating that the service was performed, and adding that some ten persons had been to its having been performed. The second mentioned was, that the Postmaster General had entered into a contract with a company, for carrying the mail from Mobile to N. Orleans, at $25,000 per annum.

In this case, was that the Postmaster General was faulted, for the Department, for the Lexington post office, and that, because he could not bring suit himself, the money could not be recovered. The mentioned a fourth case, but which escaped the
Mr. S., as, indeed, he could not view these cases fight in which Mr. Bradley seemed to consider and he repeats, as he before stated, that he dis

23.1 September, ult.

3-4 fice, discovered that he had overdrawn his account and mentioned the manner in which he had raised — restored the amount, soon after the discovery :—
1-2 He appeared to desire that it might not be mentioned. Mr. S. forbears to state the sums, or the particulars of the transactions. Mr. S. also enquired of him what amount of luncheon was contained in the iron chest left in his room? He replied, "ten, eleven, or twelve thousand dollars." Mr.
S. enquired of him, whether he had not charged in the Department) from monies in his control? replied that he had not.—As it had been suggested S. by Doct. Bradley, that the department, on settlement of Mr. Abraham Bradley's accounts, owe him a large sum, Mr. S. was induced from civility for his case, to enquire of him as to the fact heard with regret his acknowledgment that there was nothing due him. Mr. S. made three enquiries on other than the best motives and feelings to since occurred that would admit, for a moment, different construction being given to them."

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA, County of Washington

Before me, the subscriber, a Justice of the Peace and for the County aforesaid, appeared Michael T. 2 son, and made oath on the holy Evangel of Almighty God, that the foregoing is in substance, (and in as nearly as he can recollect) a true statement taken Postmaster General to Abraham Bradley, Esq.

the 19th ult. and made by request of the Post General. Given under my hand and seal this 17th of October, 1829. C. H. W. WHARTON, J.
[U. S. 2]
THE INTELLIGENCE AND THE POST OFFICE

On Thursday last, we attributed the abuse of the Post Office which has appeared in the National Inquirer, to the refusal of Mr. Barry to pay a draught by Mr. Bradley, in anticipation of the patronage of his Department. The editors of that print yesterday made a flourish, threatening our annihilation.

02 | Gaining Control over Your Time